

BANT June Event (Virtual) - Healthspan & Aging Optimally

Hello there,

Do you want to enhance your ability to support your clients healthspan?

If yes, join us online on Saturday 29 June 2024 for a deep dive into the latest research and theory with a strong emphasis on science-based tools and tips for use in clinical practice.

Professor Rose Anne Kenny, Principal Investigator on The Irish Longitudinal Study on Aging (TILDA) will deliver a comprehensive overview of the factors known to influence healthy ageing, drawing on her own research and many others.

Emma Beswick will leverage a key recent “hallmarks of ageing” framework to place genetic and modifiable factors into context, covering nutrient sensing and mitochondrial function and the clinical utility of genetic testing and testing of biomarkers to assess and inform healthspan interventions.

Lorraine Nicolle will guide us into “Healthspan Support in Action” with a series of case studies demonstrating the value in massively increasing dietary phytochemical whilst showing why and how to apply personalisation and precision.
